

Alternative treatment

In 2002, the World Health Organisation reported that Malaysians spent an estimated US$500 million (RM2.156 billion) annually on traditional and complementary medicine.

“When we’re sick, we’re desperate to find the cure or an assurance that things can be solved. Healers usually tell the patients what they want to hear.”

Dr Hazli Zakaria