

Introduction

This conference encourages collaboration and exchange of knowledge and research experiences among young researchers. Through exploration, discussion, and presentation, these young researchers are able to discover new dimensions and insights in research and uncover cutting edge technology that will promote healthy ecosystem and spark deeper into their research interest. In developing healthy ecosystem to go further, pushing their potential to the fullest beyond their dream in providing knowledge and competencies that will benefit the next generation.

Objectives

To provide platform for students to present their research within the field of STEM and non-STEM that would improve human ecosystem.

To enhance their understanding and skills in research and innovation.

To improve students' eloquence and boost their confidence through presentation.

To develop researchers who practice integrity in conducting research.

To provide platforms for teachers, educators, and mentors to build networks among experts in various fields and specialization.

To provide teachers and mentors basic understanding about the Gifted and Talented education through workshops and discussions.
